

Paul Robson

Head of G10 FX Strategy, EMEA

Responsibilities

As Head of G10 FX Strategy, Paul is the senior strategist for the major currencies, as well as being part of NatWest's UK Macro Strategy team. He is responsible for formulating the NatWest Markets sterling currency view and inputs into the organisation's global macro view. He is editor of NWM Global FX Themes publication, is a regular contributor to NatWest's Bondcast and Currency Exchange podcasts and supervises the team's modelling work on Short-term and Long-term Valuations.

Joined the company

2004

In current position

July 2016

Previous position at the company

Up to June 2016, Paul was a senior currency research analyst, Independent Research.

Education

Paul graduated from Portsmouth University and holds a Master's degree in Economics and Econometrics from the University of Bristol.

Additional background

Paul is predominately a top-down macro-strategist focusing on G20 currency markets and has over 25 years of experience covering a wide range of economies and financial markets. He also provides bottom-up, deep-drive analysis on European currencies and economies, specialising in sterling, the euro and Nordic currencies. His main research interest is econometric modelling of currency short and long-term equilibrium exchange rates. Paul joined RBS from Bank One Capital Markets, where he held the position of Market Strategist. Previously he held Senior Macroeconomist/Researcher positions at several leading economic forecasting organisations, including the Centre for Economic Forecasting at the London Business School (LBS), Oxford Economics (OEF) and Global Insight. During his time at the Confederation of British Industry and LBS, he was responsible for running fully-specified macro-economic models of the UK and reported to two former Bank of England Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) members (Barker/Sentance).

Contacts

Tel: +44 (0)20 7085 6125

Email: paul.robson@natwestmarkets.com